The ranking shows average IMDB ratings for three popular sitcoms: "Friends", "How I met your mother" and "Modern Family". It's shown that most episodes for seasons 1-8 of HIMYM oscillated between 7.5 and 8.75 with no major outliers. In the case of the ninth season, there is a significant difference in opinion among viewers of the series.

Each of the main characters is a very expressive individual when it comes to emotions. Their stories make the series a blend of many emotions. Let's see how the distribution of these emotions looks like according to the characters.

Our 5 main characters continuously interact with each other throughout the series. Their deep relationship is based on spending important moments together, caring for each other, and enjoying each other's company. Here's a graph depicting the number of interactions between those characters. The thickness and saturation of the color represent the strength of the relationship.

Despite the TV series' title, motive of fatherhood is prominently explored. Fathers play important roles in shaping the main characters' development, influencing them both before and throughout the events depicted. While fathers appear more than mothers of the main characters (57 vs 47), it's worth noting that one father passes away, and another is introduced later in the series.
